OWING to the large amount of time occupied since last issue removing to the new BULLETIN building, a great deal of important matter has been crowded out of this issue, for which unusual occurrences, apologies are hereby offered.
J. GRAHAM left for the Tete Jaune cache on Saturday, taking with him a supply of dry goods and flour to add to the supply purchased from the Carruthers party. He will trade with the Shuswap Indians during the coming winter.
REV. G. W. DEAN, D. D., pastor of the Methodist church, has returned from attending the quadrennial session of the general conference of the Methodist church of Canada held at London, Ont. He also attended the Northwest conference held at Neepawa.
THE petroleum boring party at Athabasca Landing, under the supervision of Dr. Selwyn and direction of the Dominion government, have struck favorable indications of petroleum at a depth of 1000ft. They are now into a greasy clay and the men in charge feel very confident of striking further indications soon.
THE Kamloops Sentinel reports the arrival of three miners who went to the Tete Jaune cache to examine their mica mines, bringing with them 250lbs. of mica, some of which cut 16x24 inches. While there, they met two prospectors from Edmonton. The specimens are attracting great attention there.
THE agents from the Indian agencies in this vicinity, who went down to Calgary on last Monday's train to meet Hayter Reed, deputy minister of Indian affairs, and hand in reports, returned on Thursday. They were John Ross, Saddle Lake agency, D. L. Clink, Bears' Hill agency, and Chas. McCases of the Stony Plain Indian agency.
On Saturday morning, when Judge Rouleau and the legal fraternity were busily intent upon the deliberations of the morning, in Robertson's hall, a sudden smoke arose before the judges' seat which was immediately followed by a burst of flames. This was caused from the furze of recent decorations falling, or, in sweeping being swept into the register. These caught fire from the heat below.
A SPECIMEN of the timothy brought from the Rockies by Mr. A. Coghlan recently, has been forwarded to J. Fletcher, government botanist, who says it is the Alpine Timothy, Phleum Alpinum. "I have grown this from Mt. Todd, B. C., (altitude 5500 feet) by Dr. G. M. Dawson of the Geological survey. Here it was a much less valuable grass agriculturally than the ordinary Timothy; but Dr. Dawson tells me that he has seen it producing a heavy crop of valuable hay in some of the mountain valleys. It is certainly indigenous in our mountains as well as on mountains in Europe. An interesting matter to me was, that although the seeds were unripe in the specimen you sent, there were some dipterous larvae feeding on the forming seeds which are apparently allied to our well known wheat midge."

MR. CARRUTHERS is spending a few days at the ranch with Dr. True.
A MEETING of the St. Andrews society will be held to-night in the council chamber.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, OCTOBER 22ND, 1894.

THE NEW "BULLETIN" OFFICE.

For a long time it has been a matter of general knowledge and comment that the BULLETIN was the best and most up to date newspaper in the Territories. Its being raised to that position and kept there was evidence of a complete and improved plant and an energetic and competent staff. At the same time it has been painfully evident to the citizens of Edmonton and many of its visitors, as well as to the proprietor and the employees, that the premises from which the paper was issued were relics of a past age—in the history of the town. As such they may have been interesting, but for the purposes for which they were required they were as inadequate as they were unsightly; and that is saying a great deal. They had only one redeeming feature,—they were right in the centre of business. The present number of the BULLETIN is issued from a new brick building which occupies the original site of the old office, and which in size, appearance, substantial character and convenience, is an ornament and a credit to the town and the equal if not the superior of any newspaper building in the Territories. The size is 25x50, solid brick walls, two stories high with stone basement the full size of the building. The basement is the pressroom and is occupied by the engine, presses and other machinery, and it will be used for the storage of the paper required in the business. The first floor of the building has two front entrances, at the left and right hand side, and is lighted by a plate glass front. It is occupied by the composing room and business office of the BULLETIN, the entrance to which is by the east door, and by W.T. Henry & Co.'s, gent's furnishings store, the entrance to which is by the west door. The second floor is divided into business offices, the entrance to which is by the east door of the building. It will be seen from this description that the building is larger than the present business of the BULLETIN requires, but it is built with the full confidence that with the growth of this town and district that must necessarily take place, the business of the newspaper will also grow so that before long it will all be required. Edmonton & Flater were architects of the building and K. A. McLeod contractor.

ADDRESS BY LADY ABERDEEN.

The following is the address delivered by Lady Aberdeen to the ladies of Edmonton in Robertson Hall on Sunday evening, October 14th:

I thank the ladies of Edmonton with all my heart for the most kind words in which they have conveyed their welcome to me, and their invitation that we should confer together touching those matters which particularly affect women, also their mission and their duties. And ladies I must say at the outset that I can never meet with a number of women in a district such as this without feeling it to be a peculiar pleasure and privilege to be brought into contact with them. For great as is the influence of women in any part of the world, yet their influence in a new country such as this is one that cannot be over-estimated, and therefore I feel that in your asking me to come and meet you, thus, that you put a great responsibility on me, for surely ladies one cannot help realizing that the women of the old world have much, very much, to learn from you here who are so bravely, so heroically, working out your mission. It has been my privilege to see something of the lives led by women here in Canada and in the Northwest, and it would be impossible not to have one's full sympathy drawn out by those who in spite of difficulties are striving to build up the homes of the people and make them all that they should be, and especially in such a place as this, is this peculiarly true; for since we have come to this district we cannot help noticing the pride, and just pride, too, that the inhabitants of this district have in their community, and its future with all its resources, and visitors such as ourselves are struck with their full and just allegiance. But ladies, after all the future of this place rests largely with you—and I am sure the gentlemen here present will forgive me for saying this—for if this district is to be all that those who wish most for it, it must be because the women of the place have made such homes as will send out children who will build up the whole community on such foundations that it can expand in the truest and highest sense of the word for the good of the whole country. It is for the women to decide whether the children who go out of these homes be strong and healthy and physically able to meet the difficulties which must come up before them when they are called upon to take their part in the affairs of the community, whether in a public way, or by leading high-minded, honorable, hardworking lives in whatever trade or business they may take up. If the homes here are such as would give those young men who have no homes as yet a chance to see something of this home life, it would make them feel that they have come in touch with something that reminds them of their mothers and their old homes, and thus give them the desire to found other homes for themselves with a bright and beautiful atmosphere about them.

Then again, the women of the place must be doing their best, their utmost to serve not only in their homes, but the country in a larger sense. Sometimes we hear home duties spoken of as if they were something narrow, and as if they kept in and confined those whose chief mission they were, but surely we can see that really to fulfil home duties demands a very wide knowledge to be in touch with all the different sides of life. We should also so keep in touch with the work going on for the general welfare outside, and should help to build up such social life around us that our children will not be exposed to any temptations which we might have prevented. And then, apart from this home life, and its duties there comes to most women nowadays in some form or another a call to go out and work in a more public sphere, such as the work connected with those church societies which lead us out beyond the immediate concerns of our home life and its duties. And then there may be other societies which have formed in a general way, such as that beautiful society of the King's Daughters of which I believe there is a circle here and to whom I am indebted for these beautiful flowers, or there may be others, but the very fact of these different societies existing side by side in the same place brings with it often a feeling that we are shut off from those who are most eager and most earnest in the work to which they have been called, and so there exists in many places in these days a desire for some other link which will connect all the workers in the same place, and it is such an organization which I have the honor to represent this evening and which the ladies have asked me to explain, viz., The National Council of Women.

Now in many places it is said "we are not ready for such an organization as that—we are too far away—we are not strong enough." But the ladies who came to meet me yesterday said that they felt that just because the women workers of Edmonton were in a certain sense far away from the world, they felt that it would be a distinct advantage if they could get in touch with some organization which would bring them into contact with the women workers throughout the country.

I do not desire to weary you with an account of the origin of this National Council of Women, but I would like to tell you briefly that it arose from the result of the Women's Congress held at Chicago last year, and it is indeed the outcome of a movement which has been going on in many parts of the world. At the Women's Congress there were women assembled from most of the civilized countries of the world, either appointed by their different governments, or by their council, or else were there simply to represent the various women's work going on in the different countries. There were a number of women from Canada there, and they decided at that Congress to take steps to call a National Council in Canada. They went forward in the matter with the result that now the National Council not only exists but is flourishing in many provinces of Canada. The work of the National Council is contained in the following words: "We women of Canada sincerely believing that the best good of our homes and nation will be advanced by uniting together, and that the organization will be for the good of the family and State, do hereby band ourselves together to the further applications of the Golden Rule to society, custom and law." It seeks to work out its object by forming councils in various centres of population. These local councils are as it were an affiliation of the various societies existing. The presidents of our societies or institutions, or organizations of any sort are women who form the executive committee along with other officers. For instance if it were thought well to form such a council here, you would see that the best church societies and missionary societies were represented on this council, and any other institution that may be here such as the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and the King's Daughters, and in case of conventions, the ladies would appoint some lady friend of theirs to represent their work to this central body. Then these local councils having been formed in this way, each year are represented at the National meeting, which is held in different places of Canada. Last year it was held at Ottawa, and next year it will be held, say at Toronto. You will ask how such an organization will tend to bring about these objects which we have put before us. Well the executive formed as I have explained is represented from all the various organizations. These decide how best to go about the work in each place where the work is begun. It is generally by having meetings from time to time of all the members of the societies represented at these meetings. The public also are generally invited if they wish to be present, and each of the societies gives a little report of the work done or aimed at by that society or organization,—explains its needs, and brings before the public and the council of workers, its special experience: You will see that in this way it gives opportunity for all workers of the community to know what is being done by others, although they may not have time to be in actual contact with this work. By these means they know what is being done by the different societies, and the mere fact of the workers assembling from time to time like this, and kneeling down together in silent prayer, acknowledging thus a dependence upon our Heavenly Father and our need for his blessing and his strength—the mere fact of all the representatives of all sections meeting together thus—speaks favorably for the results of their labor, and that I can say positively, having watched its effects in various parts of the country, not only here, but also in Great Britain. It is a great thing to be brought together and hear accounts of others' work, against whom we may have had some prejudice or some jealousy, to learn that we can all contribute towards the common fund of experience, and to tell one another our failings and success. We can easily see that we gather very much from these meetings, and that besides this, at these meetings generally it is arranged that some paper or papers should be read on some special subject which would be of interest or of use to the women of the community. Of course the field is so large that it is scarcely necessary to mention subjects other than those which are strictly relative to the home life, and I do feel that this council of women can be of immense use to the women of the country by bringing them together to give counsel one to another. For instance the training of children and the many sides of that subject. We all know our own difficulties in the matter and our own failures, and I believe we lose a great deal by not coming together and helping one another more on this important subject, and more especially in these days when perhaps the matter is of special difficulty to parents. We cannot go back to the old days when the authority of the parent was unquestioned and absolute—we would not go back to them if we could—but more and more does it need wisdom and tact and all the experience and help we can get in dealing with our families, how to inspire our children with the highest ideals, how to keep our influence over them as they are growing up, how to become their friends; and therefore on this subject alone I believe that the Women's Council can be of much use. We might save much trouble and many bitter disappointments if we would speak and tell others our difficulties, and if only we feel that we are not alone in these perplexities of home life, but that we are all together sisters in these matters. And again other councils have taken up the matter of the preparation of food and cooking and also have instituted classes for that purpose. But beside these matters there are others which may be considered of a more public character, as those dealing with the care of the poor, the homeless, or the helpless, or the nursing of the sick. For instance, I might give you perhaps a few illustrations of matters which other councils have taken up the lines that other Councils develop, because our great object is to see that it should develop according to the needs that we feel. Some of our Councils have taken up these domestic matters of which I have spoken; one is starting arrangements for the training of servants and others are trying to get manual instruction introduced into the schools, teaching the girls sewing; and others in the bigger cities are trying to bring about an association of the different charities so that charity shall not overlap and that deserving cases shall not be passed over. Other objects are the providing of police matrons to look after female prisoners. These are illustrations of different matters which the Women's Council have taken hold of. Any subject which is of interest to women is brought forward in this council and is discussed. I think that the second object of ours is still more perfect, which is the application of the golden rule of society, custom and law. Some may object perhaps to such a wide basis as that, but when you come to think what it would mean if the golden rule was applied generally we should see sufficient to bind us together in the highest ideals of life and duty. And now ladies I feel that the hour is late and I do not wish to detain you by going into further details regarding this organization. It is somewhat difficult at the outset to make its aim and objects clear. It is one of those things which must be tried, and I would like also to say that I am very anxious it should be understood that I am in no way pressing this organization upon any body of women in Canada. But as its president, I feel bound to explain as far as I am able its working to any meeting of ladies who are good enough to wish to hear about it. Local councils have been formed in most of the larger cities of Canada, Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, London, Hamilton, Halifax, St. John, Port Arthur, Winnipeg, and I think they are to be found at Regina, Medicine Hat, Calgary and Victoria. You will see therefore ladies that already a wonderful chain of links has been formed which if it can in any way carry out its high object ought to be a very great help to the women workers of Canada—to women therefore who are working in connection with societies or institutions or those who are carrying out their mission in home life. We claim that it is a patriotic organization in the very highest possible sense. Not only does it link together those of different sections of the Dominion, but also the women of the golden rule and the women of the different sections of the home. For I am glad to say that members of all of the different denominations have joined with us in our various local organizations; different sections of the Protestant church and of the Roman Catholic church and in those places where there are those of the Jewish faith, they also have united; and therefore you will see that this can be the means of forming a golden bond of sisterhood from one end of the world to the other. And now ladies it will be for you to decide whether or not you think this organization will be of use to you here. In any case I would like to thank you most heartily both for your invitation and for coming here to-night in such a representative way to listen to such explanations as I can give. In any case I can assure you as I did before at the outset, I have felt a peculiar pleasure at being brought into contact with you who have been called to such a high and worthy mission in this place and I would most respectfully ask you to accept my sincerest and most heartfelt sympathy and my best wishes. I desire to be at any time of service to you.

DR. WILSON AND THE ARBITRATION AGAIN.

This time a very few lines answers, I submit, fully, the communication of last issue. I will not refer to Dr. Wilson's remarks concerning myself. He answers all in the implied admission of his own letter, and as to the varieties of abusiveness he offers to myself, I can only say that I consider the same a delineation of his own real character, it is simply an exposure of himself unwittingly made, for one can hardly see what argument to sustain an award of a certain sum can be found in abuse of any kind. Certainly the public should feel grateful to the Doctor for the exposure of himself that he has made. Personally I always think it worth something to really know what any man can stoop to. But you will remember that my challenge was to answer the all-important question: (1) How did you arrive at the award of $325.00? (2) How as to any damages?

I asserted that he had no evidence, absolutely no evidence, with him. There was no other question to be decided by the arbitration but that of the damages, hence the importance of the issue of my challenge. Note his reply; he produces no argument, and quotes absolutely no evidence, although two long letters have been written. He cannot in any manner justify himself or his award. He can only offer the following excuses for arguments and I quote his own language to avoid error, namely: (a) "I again say that it is not part of the duty of an arbitrator to explain to the public 'how the award was reached.'" (b) His second and last argument on the point is: "I considered the evidence, weighed and sifted it, and viewed the ground in dispute and exercised what common sense 'God had given me in arriving at a decision.'" By THIS MEANS I reached the sum of $325.00.

The first argument, "that he is not bound to offer his reasons for the award" when he writes two long letters in order to do so and slides all around the point to make the public think he is answering, such remark of his is nothing else but excellent proof that my accusation is correct that he cannot explain how he arrived at the amount. His second excuse, (b) above, says nothing; Dr. Wilson's common sense is not in evidence and he cannot base an award upon it. He was sworn to give a verdict upon the evidence, not his "common sense" for it may be an indefinite quantity. We therefore want to know upon what evidence he gave such a strange award. I do not intend to allow this all important point to be dodged and again I challenge his figures and his evidence and I assert that he cannot sustain such award by any evidence. Abuse of myself is no argument; evidence and evidence alone is the argument he must produce. He may insinuate, falsely and slander me, but he does not by so doing defend himself and you know the old saying "when you have a poor case abuse the opposite attorney" such is the Doctor's policy, but the common sense of the public wants something else; the public have no interest in either Dr. Wilson or myself and the public press is not a medium through which abuse is to be poured, but it is for pure unadulterated argument on points of public interest, why then does he not confine himself to such and give such? You want argument upon, not side issues, but the controlling points. You can see that he has not offered such, and I am now convinced that he cannot.

I regret that this peculiar discussion has now to be closed without either the public or myself discovering how McDougall got $325.00 damages. The mystery will, I suppose, die away and be forgotten, but I ask you simply to keep in mind the one fact that you have never found a reason for the same, and that Dr. Wilson never assisted you in your difficulty.

RESOLUTION OF CONDOLENCE.
At the last regular meeting of the Ladies Aid it was moved and seconded that the following resolution of condolence be forwarded to you on the death of your beloved mother.

DEAR MISS MCCARTNEY.
Be it resolved that whereas it hath pleased Almighty God to take from you your beloved mother, that this society extends to you its heartfelt sympathy in the loss you have sustained.
We trust that the All-wise creator who doeth all things well, will, in this hour of your sad bereavement, give you strength to bear your affliction with true christian fortitude and humble resignation.
Knowing that what is your loss is her gain and to look forward to the time when loved ones are united and when parting shall be no more.

Mrs. J. Somers.
Signed Alice Clark.

SUPREME COURT.

Queen vs. Foster. Prisoner was charged with embezzlement. As he had made restitution of the money taken and there were extenuating circumstances, the private and crown prosecutors requested that he be discharged. As he had already spent a considerable time in jail awaiting trial, the judge ordered his discharge. J. C. Bown for the prisoner, N. D. Beck for the crown.

Queen vs. Walker. Prisoner was charged with stealing a span of horses from the Messrs Cookson of Beaver Lake, and a cow at Ponoka. He was also charged on another count with having procured goods under false pretences from F. De Journal of Red Deer. The prisoner was convicted on both counts and was sentenced to five years penitentiary on each. The sentences run concurrently. J. C. F. Bown for prisoner, N. D. Beck for the crown.

Queen vs. Burleigh. Prisoner was charged with having shot at his brother at Wetaskiwin. The charge was abandoned and the prisoner discharged.

Pruden vs. Ducharme. Action to recover $1,500 loaned. Evidence was taken and the case will be concluded at the adjourned sittings in November.

Court adjourned on Saturday afternoon until November 16th, when the civil cases will be tried.
